

The effect of sterilization of impression compound on its reproducibility and flow properties

The sterilization of impression compound for several times has no effect on its reproducibility and flow. The material can be used acceptably in the clinical field for several times of application.